

Date:

Friday, March 26, 2010

Time:

3:10pm - 3:30pm

Presenter:

“Renewable Energy and Sustainability at Waukesha County Technical College”

Ray J. Walter, Ph.D.

Manager, Renewable Energy and Sustainability
Waukesha County Technical College

Learn about Green initiatives and activities taking place at Waukesha County Technical College. We will highlight Renewable Energy and Sustainability workshops and courses; discuss Green career pathways, the expected shortage of qualified workers, and the skills needed by both new and incumbent workers.

Presenter Biography:

Ray J. Walter

Ray J. Walter, Ph.D., is the Manager of Renewable Energy and Sustainability at Waukesha County Technical College. Dr. Walter is responsible for resources, instruction and budgets related to Renewable Energy and Sustainability including the creation of new programs, development of short-range and long-range plans for programs, development of courses and supervision of staff. Dr. Walter has attended and presented at numerous national and regional conferences on topics such as renewable energy, educational technology, outcomes assessment, teaching and learning, and manufacturing-education alliances in cities from Boston, Massachusetts to Long Beach, California.